

Today, I think I am going to talk to that girl or any girl that I find, just feel that I am going to initiate a conversation after all. I have no wish to restrain myself in anyway today. It's going to be super fun as I see it - you know chatting with folks and saying 'Hi'. The one and only thing that could be something, just so that it would not be a gibberish anymore - just go with the flow today and be there you know - talk to more folks, see what comes up.

Sit wherever you'd wish and carry on writing - this is wonderful indeed a super burst of energy and the feel good that rarely bechums me - I'm going down and go there to say 'Hi'. There's always that brace when we need it and keep going - whatever it be.

I remember this place used to be like a fish market years ago but now things seem to have changed or not? who knows - let it all be - just be you know - there's no point no point.

The words they come again - no point - keep it low - stop faking around yeah - don't be that guy - the moralist or whatever a sociopath - no - he's a touch load of bull I must say - there's no point - yeah no point screw it all - just play along.