Thursday

I try to recuperate from my illness - I still have phlegm and tiredness - the weather is gloomy and there's dread around me in the form of mundane happenings.

I could go on like this for another few more days. The money would run out and I would have to cancel the membership at the beginning of June, which is ten days ahead. I have no intention to borrow from anyone,

I simply would rather be parasitic on home/parents for my survival than borrow money from anyone.

I feel the chills due to A/C and cold weather - I'm behaving like a champion in front of this adversity - as if I can continue without jacket and winter wear. I would have to go home to get one. Today is Thursday, not sure how the traffic might be.

I should probably make that trip back home to get the stuff I need and come back here. That'd get it all better? Maybe, get the PS4 here - I could play some GTA.

Tomorrow, I would have to attend that session with Richard before I cancel it.
